ClickSafety launches updated OSHA 30-Hour Construction and 10-Hour General Industry online safety courses as part of OSHA Outreach Training Program

Leading online safety training organization offers the largest portfolio of OSHA-authorized Outreach Training courses

Walnut Creek, CA, July 30, 2012 – ClickSafety, a leading provider of online safety training, today announced the availability of its updated OSHA 30-Hour Construction and 10-Hour General Industry online courses that include the highest standards of increased student interactivity and safety content. Additionally, ClickSafety is making available OSHA-authorized 10-Hour Road Builder, 10-Hour Cal/OSHA Construction and 10-Hour Construction Spanish courses. These courses, along with their current OSHA 10-hour construction course, meet the U.S. Department of Labor's Occupational Safety and Health Administration (OSHA) safety training course requirements and are now available for purchase.

ClickSafety is a pioneer in online safety training and was the first to offer both the OSHA 10-Hour and OSHA 30-Hour courses online as part of its longstanding relationship with OSHA and the OSHA Outreach Training Program.

"We are excited to continue to provide the construction, environmental and general industries interactive and meaningful safety training courses. We have worked diligently to ensure our training meets the requirements established by OSHA, and will effectively educate, enable and encourage safety in the workplace," said Brian Tonry, executive vice president and general manager of ClickSafety.

ClickSafety has provided online safety training to over 10,000 businesses and delivered more than 6 million courses to students worldwide. With its library of over 300 courses (70+ in Spanish), ClickSafety provides unprecedented access to OSHA and construction, environmental and general industry safety courses.
